It is a most delightful Hair Dressing.
It eradicates scurf and dandruff.
It keeps the head cool and clean.
It makes the hair rich, soft and glossy.
It prevents the hair turning gray and falling off.
It restores hair upon prematurely bald heads.

This is just what Lyon's Kathairon will do. It is pretty—it is cheap—durable. It is literally sold by the carload, and yet its almost incredible demand is daily increasing, until there is hardly a country store that does not keep it, or a family that does not use it.

GIVE ME BACK MY HEART AGAIN.

Fair enchantress, why so fast?
Tarry, I implore thee;
Break the chain around me cast,
Raise the spell that's o'er me!
Wilt thou all my fond hopes blast,
Doom the heart to sink at last,
In the memories of the past,
Whose fault was to adore thee?

Why has thy seductive art,
In such fetters bound me?
If so quickly we must part,
Why this charm around me?
Let compassion wring the dart,
Rankling in my bleeding heart;
If we must forever part,
Leave me as ye found me.

Aught from me wouldst thou obtain,
I could ne'er refuse thee;
Were thy lips to give me pain,
Ne'er would I accuse thee;
Let me not entreat in vain—
Cower 'neath thy cold disdain—
Give me back my heart again,
If I thus must lose thee.

Napoleon's Three Warnings.

The celebrated Fouche, Duke of Otranto, was retained for a time, it is well known, in the service of the Bourbons, after their restoration to the throne of France. He retired to the town of Aix, in Province, and there lived in affluent case upon the gains of his long and busy career. Curiosity attracted many visitors around this remarkable man, and he was habitually free in communicating his reminiscences of the great events which it had been his lot to witness. On one occasion the company assembled in his saloon heard from his lips the following story:

By degrees as Napoleon assumed the power and authority of a king, everything about him, even in the days of the consulate, began to wear a court-like appearance. All the old monarchial habitudes were revived one by one. Among the other revivals of this kind, the custom of attending mass previous to the hour of audience was restored, and Bonaparte himself was punctual in appearance at the St. Cloud on such occasions.

At one particular time the punctuality of Bonaparte in his attendance on mass was rather distressing to his wife. The quick and jealous Josephine had discovered that the eyes of her husband was too much directed to a window in the gallery, where there regularly appeared the form and face of a young girl of uncommon beauty. The chestnut tresses, the brilliant eyes, and graceful figure of this personage, caused more uneasiness to the consul's wife, as the stranger's glances were bent no less often upon Bonaparte than his were upon her.

"Who is that young girl?" said Josephine one day, at the close of the service; "what can she seek from the First Consul? I observed her drop a billet just down at his feet. He picked it up; I saw him."

No one could tell Josephine who the object of her notice precisely was, though there were some who declared her to be an emigrant lately returned, and one who was probably desirous of the intervention of the First Consul in favor of her family.

With such guesses as this the consul's wife was obliged to rest satisfied for the time.

After the audience of the same day had passed, Bonaparte expressed a wish for a drive in the park, and accordingly went out accompanied by his wife, his brother Joseph, Generals Duroc and Cambaceres, and Hortense Beauharnois, wife of Louis Bonaparte.

The King of Prussia had just presented Napoleon with a superb set of horses, four in number, and these were harnessed to an open chariot for the party. The Consul took it into his head to drive in person, and mounted into the coachman's place. The chariot set off, but just as it was turning into the park, it went crash against a stone at the gate, and the First Consul was thrown to the ground. He attempted to rise, but again fell prostrate in a stunned or insensible condition. Meanwhile, the horses sprang forward with the chariot, and were only stopped when Duroc at the risk of his life threw himself out and seized the reins. Josephine was taken out in a swooning state. The rest of the party quickly returned to the First Consul and carried him back to his apartments. On recovering his senses fully, the first thing which he did was to put his hand into his pocket and pull out the slip of paper dropped at his feet in the chapel. Leaning over his shoulder Josephine read these words: "Do not drive out in your carriage to-day."

"This can have no allusion to our late accident," said Bonaparte. "No one could foresee that I was to play the part of a coachman to-day, or that I should be awkward enough to drive against a stone. Go, Duroc, and examine the chariot."

Duroc obeyed. Soon after he returned, very pale and took the First Consul aside.

"Citizen Consul," said he, "had you not struck the stone, and stopped our drive, we had all been lost!"

"How?" was the reply.

"There was in the carriage, concealed behind the back seat, a bomb—a massive bomb, and with a slow match attached to it—kindled! Things had been so arranged that in a quarter of an hour we should have been scattered among the trees in the Park of St. Cloud. There must be treachery close at hand. Fouche must be told of this—Dubois must be warned."

"Not a word, then," replied Bonaparte. "The knowledge of one plot but engenders a second. Let Josephine remain ignorant of the danger she has escaped. Hortense, Joseph, Cambaceres, tell none of them; and let the Government journals say not a word about my fall."

The First Consul was then silent for some time. At length he said: "Duroc, you come to morrow to mass in the Chapel, and examine with attention a young girl whom I shall point out to you. She will occupy the fourth window in the gallery, on the right. Follow her home, or cause her to be followed—and bring me intelligence of her name, her abode and her circumstances. It will be better to do this yourself. I would not have the police interfere. Have you taken care of the bomb, and removed it."

"I have, Citizen Consul."

"Come, then, let us again drive in the park," said Bonaparte.

The drive was resumed, but on this occasion the coachman was allowed to fulfill his own duties.

On the morrow the eye of more than one person was turned to the window in the gallery. But the jealous Josephine sought in vain for the elegant figure of the young girl. She was not there. The impatient First Consul with his confident, Duroc, were greatly annoyed at her non-appearance, and small was the attention paid by them to the services that day. Their anxiety was fruitless. She was seen at mass no more

The summers of Napoleon were chiefly spent at Malmaison; the winters at St. Cloud and the Tuilleries. Winter had come on, and the First Consul had been holding court in the great apartment of the last of these palaces. It was the 3d of the month, which the Republicans well called nivoss, and in the evening Bonaparte entered his carriage to go to the opera, accompanied by his aid-de-camp Lauriston, and Generals Lannes and Berthier. The vehicle was about to start, when a female, wrapped in a black mantle, rushed out upon the Place Carousel, made her way into the middle of the guards about to accompany Napoleon, and held forth a paper crying:

"Citizen Consul! read, read!"

Bonaparte, with that smile which Burrienne describes as so irresistible, saluted the petitioner, and stretched out his hand for the missive.

"A petition, madame?" said he inquiringly, and then continued, "Fear nothing; I shall present it, and see justice done."

"Citizen Consul!" cried the woman imploringly, joining her hands.

What she would have further said was lost. The coachman, who it was afterwards said was intoxicated, gave the lash to his horses, and off they sprung with the speed of lightening. Napoleon, throwing into his hat the paper he had received, remarked to his companions:

The carriage dashed rapidly along; it was just issuing from the street of St. Nicholas, when a frightful detonation was heard mingled with and followed by a crash of broken windows. The infernal machine had exploded.

Uninjured, the carriage of the Consul and its inmates was whirled with undiminished rapidity to the opera. Bonaparte entered his box with serene brow and unruffled deportment. He saluted, as usual, the assembled spectators, to whom the news of the explosion came with all the speed which rumor exercises on such occasions.

All were stunned and stupefied. Bonaparte alone was perfectly calm. He stood with crossed arms, listening attentively to the oratorio of Haydn, which was executed on the evening.

Suddenly he remembered the paper put in his hands. He took it out, and read these lines:—

"In the name of Heaven, Citizen Consul to not go to the opera to-night; if you do go, pass not through the street of St. Nicholas."

The warning came, in some respects, too late.

On reading these word the First Consul chanced to raise his eyes. Exactly opposite to him, in a box in the third tier, sat the young girl of the chapel of St. Cloud, and with joined hands, seemed to utter prayers of gratitude for the escape which had taken place. Her head had covering but her flowing and beautiful chestnut hair, and her person was wrapped in a dark mantle, which the Consul recognized as identical with that worn by the woman who had delivered the paper to him at the carriage door. "Go," said Bonaparte, quietly but quickly to Lannes, "go to the box directly opposite to us on the third tier. You will find a young girl in a dark mantle. Bring her to the Tuilleries. I must see her;" and without raising his eyes, but to make Lannes certain of the person, he took the general's arm, and said, pointing upward, "See there—look!"

Bonaparte stopped sudden. The girl was gone; no black mantle was to be seen. Annoyed at this beyond measure, he hurriedly sent of Lanes to intercept her. It was all in vain. The boxkeeper had seen such an individual, but knew nothing about her. Bonaparte applied to Fouche and Dubois; but all the zeal of these functionaries failed in discovering her.

Years ran on after the explosion of the infernal machine, and the strange accompanying circumstances tended to make the occurrence more remarkable in the eyes of Bonaparte. To the Consulate succeeded the Empire and victory after victory marked the career of the great Corsican. At length the hours of change came. All of Europe poured its troops into France, and compelled the Emperor to lay down the sceptre which had been so long shaken over half the civilized earth. The isle of Elba became for a day the most remarkable spot on the globe and, finally the resuscitated empire fell to pieces anew on the field of Waterloo.

Bonaparte was about to quit France. The moment had come for him to set foot on the bark which was to convey him to the English vessel. Friends who had followed the fallen chief to the very last were standing by him to give him a final adieu. He waived his hand to those around, and a smile was on the lips which had recently given the farewell kiss to the imperial eagle. At this instant a woman broke the band that stood before Napoleon. She was in the prime of womanhood; not a girl, but yet young enough to retain unimpaired that beauty for which she would at any time have been remarkable among a crowd of beauties. Her features were full of anxiety and sadness, adding interest to her appearance even at that moment. "Sire!" said she presenting a paper at that moment, "read! read!" The Emperor took the epistle presented to him, but kept his eye on the presenter. He seemed, it may be, to feel at that instant the perfumed breeze of the park of St. Cloud, to hear choristers chanting melodiously in the chapel as he had heard them in other days. Josephine, Duroc and all his friends, come haply before him, and among them the face which he was wont to see at the fourth window in the gallery. His eye was now on that countenance in reality, altered, yet the same. These illusory recollections were of short duration. Napoleon shook his head and held the paper up to his eye. After perusing its contents he took the paper between his hands and tore it to pieces, scattering the fragments in the air.

"Stop, sire," said the woman, "follow the advice! Be warned! It is yet time!"

"No," replied he; and taking from his finger a beautiful oriental ruby, valuable souvenir of the Egyptian campaigns, held it out to the woman. She took it kneeling, and kissing the hand which presented it. Turning his head, the Emperor then stepped into the boat, which wanted to take him to the vessel. For long afterward he was pining on the rock of St. Helena.

Thus the three warnings, two were useless because neglected until the danger had occurred, and the third—which prognosticated Napoleon's fate if once in the power of his adversaries—the third was rejected.

"But, who was this woman, Duke of Otranto?"

"Oh," replied Fouche, "I know not, with certainty. The Emperor, if he knew ultimately seems to have kept the secret."

All that is known respecting the matter is, that a female related to St. Regent, one of the authors of the explosion of the street St. Nicholas, died at the hospital Hotel Dieu, in 1837, and that round her neck was suspended, by a silk ribbon, the exquisite oriental ruby of Napoleon.

Forgiveness.

A soldier whose regiment lay in a garrison town in England, was brought before his commanding officer for some offence. He was an old offender, and had often been punished. "Here he is again," said the officer, on his name being mentioned: "Everything—flogging, disgrace, imprisonment—has been tried with him."

Whereupon the sergeant stepped forward, and apologizing for the liberty he took, said: "There is one thing which has never been done with him yet, sir."

"What is that, sir?" was the answer.

"Well sir," said the sergeant, "He has never been forgiven."

He reflected for a few moments, ordered the culprit to be brought in, and asked what he had to say to the charge.

"Nothing, sir," was the reply; "only I am sorry for what I have done."

Turning a kind and pitiful look on the man who expected nothing else than that punishment would be increased with the repetition of his offense, the Colonel addressed him, saying, "Well, we have decided to forgive you!"

The soldier was struck dumb with astonishment; the tears started to his eyes, and he wept like a child. He was humbled to the dust; he thanked the officer and retired; to be the old refractory, incorrigible man? No; he was another man from that day forward. He who tells the story had him for years under his eye, and a better conducted man never wore the Queen's colors. In him kindness bent one whom harshness could not break; he was conquered by mercy, and, forgiven, ever afterwards feared to offend.

☞Rev. Robert Hall, in early life, loved a most beautiful and accomplished lady by the name of Steele, who, however jilted him and married a man of fortune. Some years after, a lady, passing into the vale of years, but who retained her vanity after she had lost her charms, said to Hall: "I presume if I were a polished piece of steel, I might receive some of your attentions, sir." "Though you may not be polished steel," replied Hall, "there can be no doubt that you are polished brass."

A SLIGHT MISTAKE.—A dry-goods merchant in Vermont advertises as follows: "The female who carried off a pair of black kid gloves from our store took also, by mistake, doubtless, half of another pair. She is requested to return the odd glove or to come to our store and get the one left, as a single glove, like a single individual, is poor stock until mated."

Temperance Topics.

"Only a Little Tipsy."

"Oh, mamma!" said a bright boy of nine years, "did you hear the fire bells ringing this morning?" "Yes my dear." "The city Hall burned down," added the boy, "and a man who had been put in the lock-up for disorderly conduct was burned to death." "Was he, indeed?" "Yes mamma; and a real nice, kind man. He got in a scuffle last night with some rowdies, and to keep the peace till morning they put him in the lock-up. People are so sorry he is burned."

"Yes, my boy, we have all reason to be sorry. For a man to be burned to death is a very shocking thing. But how come the poor man to be in that scuffle? You say he was a nice, kind man. That seems strange."

"Why, mamma, he was only a little tipsy."

"Only a little tipsy! That explains all."

"Yes, he was tipsy. And they think that in lighting his pipe, towards morning, a spark fell on something that kindled very quick, and so the building was burnt, and the man in it. He shrieked dreadfully to be let out, but they could not get him out till it was too late."

"Remember that, my boy. When you grow bigger, and the boys want you to drink anything like rum or wine, don't listen to them for a moment. They may say, 'A little won't hurt you.' Remember that all drunkards in the world began by taking a little at first. The poor man who was burned to death this morning had no idea of being a drunkard. But bad habits became stronger, and they make slaves of us before we know it. Always remember the man who lost his life because he was "only a little tipsy.'"

Not Dead Yet.

Jack Skidmore, once an inveterate drunkard, was very suddenly converted from the error of his ways, and became an earnest advocate of the temperance cause. To a large audience of apostles and penitents, assembled in a country school house in the wilds of Missouri, he related the cause of his reformation "thusly:"

While crossing the prairies, he had given himself up to a free indulgence of his propensity, having an abundant supply of the elixir vitæ. After stowing away a large cargo, with a heavy load on deck—to use his own expression—he strolled away from the train, and the oily fluid beginning to course rapidly through his veins, finding navigation somewhat difficult, he concluded to lie down and enjoy "forty winks." The sun was broiling hot, and no shade, but the soothing syrup (Y. P. M., not Mrs. Winslow's celebrated) soon rendered him blissfully ignorant of any external discomforts. It was early in the forenoon when he laid down; about dusk when he was roused to a state of semi-consciousness by as he supposed, the angels flapping their wings in his face. As reason began to resume her sway, he found himself surrounded by a flock of buzzards, who had already made frequent dives for a morsel, of, as they thought, their legitimate prey. "Brethren," says he, "hic—I raised up—hic—and threw out my—hic—hands to the— hic— buzzards, you're a leetle premature. I ain't dead yet.' The train had gone on, after a vain search for me, it having proceeded a long distance from where I left it before I was missed. I had a tramp alone, for two hundred miles, without any stimulus, suffering the torments of the d—d. Take warning, brethren, enroll yourselves in the cold water army; drink nothing but pure liquid from the limpid stream—the only beverage nature ever intended for man."

USE HIM AS YOU WANT HIM.—A man in an ale house at a late hour, saw a fellow drunk on an opposite bench.

"Do you wish to get rid of this sot?" he asked.

"Yes," answered the landlord, "and a half crown shall speak my thanks."

"Agreed," said the other. "Get me a sack."

A sack was produced, and the drunkard bundled into it. Away trudged the man to the residence of a noted anatomist, at whose door he knocked.

"Whose's there?" said a voice from within.

"I have brought you a subject," said the man; "so come quick; bring me my fee."

He was immediately admitted, the guinea paid, and the sack, with its contents, deposited in the surgery.—Scarcely had he got out, when the drunken man awoke. The surgeon, enraged at being thus outwitted, ran out and overtook the fellow, and collared him, crying, "Why, you dog, the man's alive!"

"So much the better," said he. "You can use him when you want him."

DON'T DRINK TO DRIVE AWAY CARE.—No man is safe who has once formed the fatal habit of looking to drink for solace, or cheerfulness, or comfort.—While the world goes well they will likely be temperate, but the habit is built, the railroad to destruction is ready for use, the rails are laid down, and the station house erected; and the train is on the line waiting only for the locomotive. Well, the first great trouble or hopeless grief is the locomotive; it comes to us and grapples us, and away we go in a moment, down the line we have been years constructing, like a flash of lightning.

Popping the Question.

The Chimney Corner has the following on "characteristic popping:"

Yankee: Jonathan—"Sal der you love doughnuts?"

Sal—"Yes Jonathan, why?"

Western: Loquacious Individual—"Hollo, old gal—see here! I've scatterlofistercated all over the equanimity of this 'ere country, looking for just such a critter as you. What say, will yer hitch?"

Western gal—"O, shucks I calkerlate; so let's git up and git."

Dutch: Hans—"Ich will beben you, Jonathans. I loves you more better than I does mein lager beer."

Jonathans—"Oh, ya, Hans, dat jist good."

French: French Gallant—"Oh, Mad. emoiselle, you will do me ze very much honor to accept ze hand?"

Mademoiselle—"Oh, Monsieur, you make my face very much rouge. Ask madam. Voulzevous?"

Jew: Mamman—"Matilda, I have five gold watches, almost as good as new, von good lot of second-handed clothing, and von good camel hair shawl, which I will give to you if you will be mine bride?"

Matilda—"Dear Hamman, I can't resist; but let me see the camel hair shawl first."

Irish: Patrick—"Biddy, darling, would yeez like a new house, a cow, a pig, and myself in the bargain?"

Bridget—"Och, Paddy, don't be tazing me! 'Tis the praste we're after wanting.

WHAT TO TAKE.—An exchange says: A lady of our acquaintance, young, and lovely and intelligent, called on a celebrated physician to do "something" for a rush of blood to her head.

"I have been doctoring myself," said the languid fair one, with a smile, to the bluff though kind M. D., while he was feeling her pulse.

"Why, I have taken Brandreth's Pills, Parr's Pills, Strauburg's Pills, Sand's Sarsaparilla, Jayne's Expectorant, used Dr. Sherman's Lozenges and Plaster, and—"

"My Heavens! madam," interrupted the astonished doctor, "all these do your complaint no good!"

"No!—then what shall I take?" pettishly inquired the patient.

"Take!" exclaimed the doctor eyeing her from head to foot—"take!" exclaimed he after a moment's reflection "Why take off your corsets!"

ARISTOCRACY.—One of the parvenu ladies of Cincinnati, who would be wonderfully aristocratic in all her domestic concerns, was visiting few days since at the house of Major G——, [all know the old Major,] when, after tea, the following conversation occurred between the Major's lady and "top knot," in consequence of the hired girl occupying a seat at the tea table:

"Why, Mrs. G——, you do not allow your hired girl to eat with you at table, do you?"

"Most certainly I do. It was so when you worked for me—don't you recollect?"

This was a "cooler" to silk and satin greatness, or, as the boy calls it, "codfish aristocracy." After coloring and stammering, she answered in a low voice: "Yes, I believe it was," and left.

☞"Will you have a Daily Sun," said a newsboy to Mrs. Partington.

"Will I have a daily son? Why you little scapegrace! How dare you insinuate against a lone woman from home? No, indeed—I guess I won't have a daily sun! My dear poor man used to complain awfully when I presented him with a yearly son. A daily son, indeed. Begone, you little upstart imp!" and the old lady called for the old turkey fan to keep her from swooning.

☞On one occasion as the Rev. Mathew Wilds, a celebrated London preachers, was on his way to a meeting of Ministers, he got caught in a shower in the place called Billingsgate, where there were a large number of women dealing in fish, who were using most profane and vulgar language. As he stopped under a shed in the midst of them, he felt called upon to give at least his testimony against their wickedness.

"Don't you think," said he, speaking with the greatest deliberation and solemnity, "I shall appear as a swift witness against you in the day of judgment?"

"I presume so," said one, "for the biggest rogue alway turns state's evidence?"

"Mathew, when he got to the meeting, related the incident.

"And what did you say in reply, Mr. Wilks?" said one of the ministers present.

"What could I?" was the characteristic reply.

"How's that?" says the smoker.

"Don't you see there--no smoking?"

"Yis; but can't ye see, yo spalpeen, the remark is addressed to the lamp?"

WM. LEWIS, HUGH LINDSAY, } EDITORS.

"I know of no mode in which a loyal citizen may so well demonstrate his devotion to his country as by sustaining the Flag the Constitution and the Union, under all circumstances, and UNDER EVERY ADMINISTRATION REGARDLESS OF PARTY POLITICS, AGAINST ALL ASSAILANTS, AT HOME AND ABROAD."—STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS.

☞Congress will re-assemble on the 5th of July, and then, we will have something else to disturb the country.

☞The Hon. Isaac Newton, Commissioner of Agriculture, died at his residence in Washington, on the 19th. Mr. Newton was the first Commissioner of the Department.

☞There will be a strong feeling in the Republican State Convention which meets at Williamsport to-day, in favor of indorsing General Grant for the next Presidency.

☞We have no persons green enough in this community to take us up at our offer to pay five dollars for 1858 cents. We are still ready to live up to our terms, if anybody is fool enough not to see the sell.

☞The New York Tribune says "the most shameful pages in history are those which record the execution of rebels against political governments."

☞General Sickles has requested the authorities at Washington that he may be relieved from command of the military district, and also demanded a court of inquiry on his action to vindicate himself.

☞The Republican State Conventions of Iowa and Ohio have both declared in favor of an amendment to the State Constitution securing the right of ballot and to hold office to all men, irrespective of color or race. Since the sister States have been heard from, what will the Republicans of Pennsylvania determine to do? Old Thad. will soon have the whole party North and South, East and West, whipped in to his traces; then, according to his idea, the war will have accomplished its purpose.

☞The military commanders in the South claim that the reconstruction act gives them exclusive control of the situation, the power to remove Governors and all other officers, and to appoint others. The President and Cabinet say the Commanders go beyond their powers and politely hints to them the importance of understanding the Reconstruction act to mean something else. To settle the difference of opinion the Republican papers urge Congressmen to re-assemble for the purpose of passing a supplementary explanatory bill. The extra session will give Congressmen a chance to ease their boilers.

THIEVING AT THE CAPITAL.—Several arrests were made last week at Harrisburg of men connected with the Departments, for appropriating to their own use thousands of dollars worth of valuable books, Records of the Legislature, etc., etc. All arrested are either messengers and clerks, or in some way connected with the powers that be, and when the whole truth is known, we have no doubt more prominent parties will be implicated in the small transactions which have been general for years. The subordinates have only been following in the footsteps of the law-makers and others having authority about the capital buildings. It is time honest men are sent there bold enough to root out the thieves having in charge the property of the people. A full expose would show how some things have been done, but we fear interested parties will smother evidence that would make their guilt even more prominent than the subordinates.

The books and papers stolen were sold as waste paper. Tons of them have been sent to the paper mill by a dealer in Harrisburg who has also been arrested.

☞If the news from Mexico is reliable, Santa Anna's career has come to an end. It is reported that he arrived off Vera Cruz on the 4th inst., but that instead of being hailed as the deliverer of Mexico, he was taken prisoner by the Liberals, tried, and sentenced to be executed. There can be little doubt that his death or permanent exile was essential to peace in Mexico.—When Maximilian first arrived, Santa Anna offered him his support. Being rebuffed, he tendered his services to Juarez, to aid in "driving the invader from Mexican soil." These being rejected, he repaired to this country, and has been engaged for the past year in concocting a new movement for the overthrow of whichsoever party might prove successful. The result seems to have been fatal to himself.

☞The progress of intimate relations between this country and Japan is illustrated in the fact that "the Japanese Commissioners now at Washington have purchased twenty thousand volumes of school books for the instruction of the Japanese. Among the books are two thousand three hundred school dictionaries, four thousand readers and spellers, ten thousand copy books, eight hundred English grammers, seven hundred copies of Well's scientific text-books; also botanies, universal history, astronomy, drawing books, geographies, etc."

BEER BREWER'S CONGRESS.—The seventh annual Congress of the Brewers of the United States, met in Chicago on Wednesday, June 5, Mr. John A. Huck, presiding. An election for new officers for the ensuing year was held in the afternoon. Frederick Lauer, Esq., of Reading, Pa., was unanimously chosen Honorary President, and Mr. Chas. Stiefil, Acting President. One Vice President was chosen from each State represented. Mr. Bergner, of Philadelphia, was elected one of the Secretaries.

The most important business transacted in the interest of the general public, was the adoption of a series of resolutions declaring war against the Temperance movement. The resolutions having reference to this matter are as follows:

WHEREAS, The action and influence of the temperance party is in direct opposition to the principles of individual freedom and political equality upon which our American Union is founded; therefore,

Resolved, That we will use all means to stay the progress of this fanatical party, and to secure our individual rights as citizens, and that we will sustain no candidate of whatever party, in any election, who is in any way disposed toward the total abstinence cause.

Resolved, That we will sustain all political papers advocating the true principles of liberty, and that we will use all efforts to make known the true social life of the Germans.

Resolved, That we find it necessary in a business point of view to patronize only such business men as will work hand in hand with us.

Resolved, That we will publish from time to time in the papers the names of officers of the various Temperance Societies.

Breadstuffs--The Dying Kick.

In New York, on Friday, the commoner kinds of flour were quoted (wholesale) at from $6 80 to $8 15 a barrel; higher grades at from $8 50 to $9 30. A month ago, for the lower grades the wholesale price was from $10 65 to $11 80; for the next higher grade, $12 00 to $13 15. On these kinds of flour alone, then, the average decline, in thirty days, has been $3 75 on every barrel, or fully thirty-three per cent.

There was a slight spasm in the New York market on Saturday—a sort of dying kick, which instead of alarming the public, gives assurance that all will soon be over. The continued sunshine and free breezes of the last few days have proved a settler. From every quarter the most hopeful accounts reach us concerning the crops. In southern Illinois the wheat harvest has already commenced, and now wheat is reaching the southern markets. Corn is coming forward finely, and, with no untoward circumstance, the crop will be very large. Truly the skies are bright.

DR. LIVINGSTONE.—Considerable doubts have existed in England as to the truth of the reports concerning the death of Dr. Livingstone, the eminent African explorer, and strong hopes are entertained that he may still be alive. In order to settle this point definitely, and expedition has been organized for the purpose of proceeding to the interior of Africa, over the route which it is understood Dr. Livingstone intended to travel. The expedition is provided with a complete outfit, one of the most important articles of which is a boat of novel construction. It is made of steel plates one sixteenth of an inch thick, and it can be taken to pieces with but little difficulty and packed in a small space, so as to be easily transportable in case it should be necessary to leave the rivers and make a portion of the journey on land. This steel boat is said to be exceedingly light and buoyant, and it is fitted up in a very complete manner, with masts, sails, and everything required for navigation.

It will be a sincere gratification to many on both sides of the Atlantic if this expedition is able to discover Dr. Livingstone still alive, or if his fate can be evidently determined.

☞We learn that the people of Danville, Pa., are upon the point of starvation. They had a case of small pox a few weeks ago and since then it has spread, and now there are some twelve cases of the genuine and forty of varioloid. The Councils passed stringent ordinances, creating a panic, and preventing citizens from without coming to the village. The consequence is they are an isolated race—without food, succor, or aid from the outside world. A merchant on Saturday took a team and went into the country to purchase produce, but the farmers, knowing he was from the "infected district," would not allow him to come within talking distance, and he, like Noah's dove, was compelled to return with bad tiding to those who were watching his coming. This is a hard case, and something should be done to succor our neighbors from starvation.

☞In view of the evidence in the case of Surratt, whose trial is progressing, it is probable that Gen. Butler,—and all others, if any there be, who agreed with him—will reverse their opinion, that an "innocent woman" was hung when Mrs. Surratt was executed. The evidence fully justifies the verdict and the sentence, not only as to her but the others who suffered death with her.

☞It is evident that the people in the Indian country—Colorado in particular—are not mildly disposed towards the savages, and have little notion of dealing with them except according to their atrocities. To this end they propose to give twenty dollars a scalp, including ears—the scalpers to have their own way of killing Indians. Governor Hunt, of Colorado, promises this, but "no bacon, sugar or coffee at any price."

☞The Iowa Republican State Convention met at Des Moines on the 20th and nominated Samuel Merrill for Governor, and Colonel Scott for Lieutenant Governor. Resolutions were passed in favor of an amendment to the State Constitution securing the right of the ballot, protection of the law, and equal justice to all men, irrespective of color, race, or religion.

☞We hear from several farmers that the red rust has struck the wheat. It appears to be general in this neighborhood.

Proclamation by the President.

WASHINGTON, June 20, 1867.

Whereas, A treaty between the United States of America and his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias was concluded and signed by their respective plenipotentiaries, at the city of Washington, on the thirtieth day of March last, which treaty being in the English and French languages is, word for word, as follows.

This treaty has already been published, and codes to the United States, immediately upon the exchange of ratifications, all the Russian American possessions, in consideration of which the United States are to pay Russia, within ten months, $7,200,000 in gold; and whereas, the said treaty has been duly ratified on both parts and the respective ratifications of the same were exchanged at Washington on this (the 20th) day of June, by William H. Seward, Secretary of State of the United States, and the Privy Counsellor, Edward de Stoeckl, the envoy Extraordinary of his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias, on the part of their respective governments;

Now, therefore, be it known that I Andrew Johnson, President of the United States of America, have caused the said treaty to be made public to the end that the same, and every clause and article thereof, may be observed and fulfilled with good faith by the United States and the citizens thereof.

In witness thereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 20th day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and of the independence of the United States the ninety-first.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

By the President:
WM. H. SEWARD, Sec'y of State.

The Surratt Trial.

The jury having been empaneled on Saturday, the 15th inst., the trial of John H. Surratt for the murder of President Lincoln commenced in earnest on last Monday morning. On this as on every subsequent day of the trial the court room was crowded by a large number of spectators, and the most intense interest in the case has been excited in all parts of the country. Judge Fisher, who was taken ill soon after the commencement of the proceedings, recovered sufficiently to take his place on the bench on Monday, and the trial has consequently been conducted since without interruption. The prisoner is described as being very pale, although composed as a general rule. But much of the testimony produced by the prosecution was evidently unexpected by him and the statements of some of the witnesses agitated him considerably at times.

On Monday the case for the prosecution was opened by Assistant District Attorney Nathaniel Wilson, who reviewed the circumstances attending the murder of Mr. Lincoln, and said that it would be proved that Surratt was not only in Washington at the time, but that he was the chief conspirator, and that he was present, in company with Booth, in front of the theatre a few minutes before the assassination took place. Mr. Wilson also said that Surratt, after leaving the country, admitted his connection with the other conspirators, and on more than one occasion boasted of the part he took in the murder of Mr. Lincoln.

A number of witnesses were examined, who related particulars in regard to the assassination; but the most important testimony elicited was that of Joseph Dye, formerly a sergeant in Battery C. Pennsylvania Artillery, and at present a recruiting sergeant in the United States army. Sergt. Dye positively identified Surratt as the man he had seen in company with Booth and with another person on the sidewalk in front of the theatre, on the night of the murder. Surratt three times announced the hour to Booth, and at ten minutes past ten the latter entered the theatre. Dye and his companion went into an adjoining saloon to get some oysters and in a few moments they heard that Booth had shot the President. This story about a man calling the time to the assassin it will be remembered, was at the time considered as a mere sensation report, got up in order to give a melo dramatic coloring to the affair. Sergeant Dye's testimony created a marked impression upon the prisoner and his counsel, as well as upon the spectators.

On Tuesday Sergeant Dye was again placed upon the witness stand. The only new testimony which he gave indicated that Mrs. Surratt, on the night of the murder, was aware of what was being done at the theatre. The prisoner's counsel gave this witness a searching cross-examination, but they were unable to shake any of his statements.

On Wednesday considerable time was consumed by a discussion between the counsel and the Court, in regard to recalling witnesses.

Mr. Carroll Hobart, a conductor on the Vermont Central Railroad thought that Surratt strongly resembled one of two men who got on the train some time between the 10th and 20th of April, 1865, to ride between St. Albans and Rouse's Point. They were extremely anxious to reach Canada but as they professed themselves unable to pay their fare, the conductor put them out at a way station.

Charles H. Blinn testified that the same men arrived at St. Albans from New York on the night of the 17th of April. They were permitted to sleep in the depot, and after they left the witness found a pocket handkerchief on the spot where one of them had been lying. This handkerchief was marked "J. H. Surratt." The prisoner became very nervous when this evidence against him was produced.

On Thursday a lengthy discussion took place regarding the retention of witnesses for the purpose of cross-examination by the defence, and the admission as evidence of a letter published in General L. C. Baker's recent work. The defence proposed to show by means of this letter that Mr. Hobart had made statements outside of the court room differing from those made on the witness stand.

The Court declined to admit this letter as evidence, and refused to allow the witnesses to be recalled by the defence.

Wm. E. Cleaver, proprietor of the stables where Booth kept his horses, stated that he frequently saw Booth and Surratt together, and that Surratt on the 26th of January remarked in conversation that "they were going to do some bloody work; they were going to kill Lincoln, the old scoundrel, as he had ruined Maryland and the whole South." The witness also testified to seeing Surratt in Washington on the day of the assassination.

On Friday, James W. Pumphrey, keeper of a livery stable on Sixth street, testified that Booth obtained a saddle-horse from him about six weeks previous to the assassination, on the recommendation of John H. Surratt, who was well known to the witness. Booth after this frequently came to the stable to get a horse, and on the 14th of April, about 12 o'clock, he obtained a bay mare, with saddle and bridle. Mr. Pumphrey said that he has never seen either Booth or the horse, saddle or bridle, since that time.

On Saturday the evidence of Hon. Frederick Seward, was heard, who related the facts of the attack upon his father. He testified as follows: I was in my own room, and my wife was there also; my mother was in her room, back of my father's; a little after 10 o'clock, on the night of the 14th of April, I heard some one come up stairs; I stepped into the passage, and I saw a stout, heavy built man, who said he was a messenger from Dr. Verdi, and that he had some medicine to deliver personally; I told him that we were trying to compose Mr. Seward to sleep, but he persisted and seemed to be determined to obey orders; after some further conversation I told him he could not see him; and the man turned to go away and I turned towards my room, when I heard a quick step behind me, and turning, I saw the man come back with a navy revolver in his hands. It passed through my mind in a moment, and the pistol was an additional reason why the man should not see my father. The man then attacked me, and in the scuffle we fell into my father's room, and I remember nothing distinctly, but have a recollection of two persons picking up my father who was bloody, and remember hearing some one say that he was not dead, I was then taken to my room, and knew nothing more until I recovered consciousness; I never saw the man afterwards. Others testified that it was Lewis Payne who attacked the Secretary of State.

After some discussion among the counsel in relation to re-calling a witness, the Court took a recess until 10 o'clock on Monday morning.

COLORADO.

Prospect of the Gold and Silver Mines.

Col. McClure, writing from Denver, holds the following views concerning the mineral prospects of Colorado:

There is much I would like to say about Colorado, but time and space compel me to be brief. I have visited her gold and silver mines, and seen the fearful waste Eastern speculation has scattered in fatal profusion among them. With countless wealth in the mountains, there is palpable decline and distress in every mining region I have seen. Let me entreat Eastern companies to learn at once the utter hopelessness of their enterprises as now organized and managed. The mills are almost wholly worthless, because they are not adapted to the successful reduction of the obstinate combinations to be found everywhere in the Colorado ores. Many companies now on the very verge of bankruptcy, or actually in its embraces, have valuable mines, and they cling to the hope that they may yet make their enterprises successful. It is folly, it is madness. It would be a blessing to both Eastern capitalists and to Colorado if one vast fire should sweep the mills of Clear Creek from existence. Her charred walls would not impede progress, as do vast buildings with engines and mills now unemployed, and never to be employed, as at present constituted. Equally foolish, wasteful and disastrous must be every effort of amateurs to reduce theores by experiments with the various processes, flooding the market and tempting the disappointed stockholder to make another effort to save his investment. Let every Eastern company wait until the problem is fully and practically solved here among the mines, and then they may hope to get more returns. They could profitably employ some capital, in the mean time, by thoughly testing their lodes, and bringing to the surface large quantities of ore. When the time comes for the successful reduction of these ores, the work of reducing them will be as distinct from mining them as is milling from farming. Where there are good mines, therefore, the companies which early accept the inevitable revolution in the production of the precious metals will yet attain success; but let them understand that these mills are, as a rule, valueless, and their construction an irretrievable waste. I firmly believe that this year will nearly, if not entirely, master these ores, so that every good mine can be worked profitably; but stockholders might as well attempt to change the fashion of the Snowy Range as to persist in the effort to mine and reduce these ores with their patent machinery. I know that this will be unwelcome information to thousands of your readers, but its truth is fearfully attested by the sacrifice of $20,000,000 in fruitless efforts to refute it.

THE INDIAN WAR.

JUNCTION CITY, KANSAS, June 19.—A letter, dated Fort Wallace, June 12th, reports number of Indian outrages in that vicity. On the 3d, Fanor and Thompson, of Pond Creek, were killed and scaled between Pond and Goose Creeks. On the 6th, two men from the mines, names unknown, were killed with half a mile of the same place. On the 7th, the coach from the West, having aboard Lieutenant Bell, three soldiers, a lady passenger, the driver and guard, was attacked by twenty-five or thirty Indians, twenty-five miles from Ft Wallace. One soldier was killed. The others dismounted and fought the Indians four miles, and finally repulsed them, killing two. It is reported that on the 17th a Government train was attacked eighteen miles west of Fort Harker, one man killed and his body horribly mutilated. The Indians are so troublesome that stage drivers refuse to go out, and eight of them deserted their coaches. It is rumored at Pond creek that General Custer had been repulsed by the Indians, who came down in force from the Platte Valley.

MAXIMILIAN'S FALL.

Surrender of Queretaro.---Imperial Side of the Story.---Starvation and Treachery.

The Empire of Maximilian expired, 4 o'clock A. M., at Queretaro, a city one hundred miles northeast of Mexico, and the capital of the prince of that name. Here the Emperor had been besieged by the Liberal forces, under Escobedo, for sixty-nine days. He had his headquarters in the Convent La Cruz, which was built by the Spaniards, and with its fortifications covers nearly fifteen acres of ground. It is a place of great strength, and commands the city and road to Mexico. It is so impregnable that any one who gets possession, with a few hundred troops, can levy contributions and civil war. "The first battalion of the line," Maximilian's best infantry, was stationed in the Convent. Escobedo held the mountain of Corretas, just opposite, and his "supreme power" battalion lay in the valley between. Starvation in the garrison determined the Emperor to cut his way out on the night of the 14th, with three thousand infantry and six hundred good cavalry, reach the mountains, form a junction with Olvera, who was supposed to have two or three thousand Imperial troops, and get into Vera Cruz, where he could stand a long siege, have the sea to bring supplies, and take him away when he concluded to leave. Everything was ready. The enemy, unsuspicious, had determined to give up the starving out plan, and attack the garrison in force at sunrise. Corn was scarce with the besiegers, and the besieged had none; but had for some time been living on the flesh of starved horses, mules and dogs. Juarez was pressing Escobedo to bring the siege to a close. Corona taunted him fiercely with want of energy, and the order of assault had been given. Knowing nothing of each other's plans, Maximilian was to assault the Liberals at midnight and escape; they to assault him in the morning. Treachery spoiled the arrangement. Mejia was to defend the city with three thousand citizens, while the Emperor and his force fought their way out. Two hours before he was to start, fifty-four pretended deserters, from the Liberal lines, were brought in, who said Juarez was besieged in San Luis, by Ortega; and Escobedo was to go at once to his assistance. Mejia asked him to organize his citizen garrison. Maximilian postponed his plan, and about the same hour, Escobedo rode down in person, to countermand the order of assault. He had the city by the treason of Colonel Lopez, Commander of the Convent. Lopez is a Mexican, was high in the confidence of the Emperor, a portly, handsome man, with no appearance of Mexican; but rather the look of an aristocratic Anglo-Saxon. He was one of the last men, in the train of Maximilian, to have been suspected of treason, but just after Escobedo had given the order of attack, he received a letter from Lopez offering, for $800, to give up the Cruz. At 4 o'clock A. M., of the 15th May, Escobedo's troops marched in at one gate, and those of Lopez out at another, as prisoners.

With the first streak of day the Emperor awoke and was the first to find that something was wrong. He hastily awoke Prince Salm-Salm, saying, "Come along, quick," and opened his door. Here he met a file of Liberal soldiers, commanded by Col. Rincon Gallardo, to whom Lopez pointed out his late friend and master, saying, "That's he!" and urged Rincon to secure him. Rincon would have liked to capture the Emperor in a fight, but scorned to take him thus. Going up to his prisoner, he pushed him out of the convent into the street, saying, "You are a citizen—you are no soldier; we don't want you—vamoz." He went on foot to Cerro de la Campana, at the other extremity of the city. His Hungarian hussars, and such of his officers as could break through the Liberal guard, followed and collected there.

The Imperial troops, generally dropped their guns and shouted vive la Libertad, as the Liberals filed in, but Miramon rallied a portion of the regiment of the Emperatrix, on a broad street, and gave battle. At the first fire, he was wounded, his men surrendered, and he was made prisoner.

Meanwhile Maximilian had been joined at the Cerro de la Campana, or Bell Height—a fortified hill command ing the other extremity of the city—by Generals Mejia, Castillo and Avellano, and Prince Salm-Salm and others of his officers, but it was quickly evident that resistance or escape was equally impossible. Four battalions of infantry and nearly the whole of the Liberal cavalry surrounded the hill. A large white flag was accordingly sent down from the Cerro, and the Emperor, with his principal officers, surrendered unconditionally to Gen. Corona. They were allowed to retain their horses, arms and personal property, and later in the day were marched round by the outskirts of the city to the Cruz. The hussars and the remaining forces on the Cerro came down in detachments, and most of them surrendered to Corona's American legion.

A Pleasant Reunion.

A few months after the breaking out of the war in '61, a party of four ladies and four gentlemen were dining together at Delmonico's. During the dinner, in talking over the national affairs, the gentlemen one and all, solemnly agreed to volunteer and serve during the war. The ladies were very enthusiastic, and promised to do all in their power to help the good cause. They then signed a document, agreeing, if they lived through the struggle to meet at the house of one of the ladies on a certain day, hour and year, and there relate their several experiences. The day named for the reunion was the 14th of June, 1867, when they all assembled together once more. Two of the gentlemen had been promoted on the field for bravery; one was a colonel, and the other a major. The remaining two had both been wounded, one having lost a leg, and the other an arm. As for the ladies, one was married to the gallant soldier who lost his leg, he having fallen in love with her while she was nursing the wounded in the hospital; another was engaged to the colonel, and the third to the gentleman who lost his arm. The fourth young lady and the major assured the rest that they had arranged to live single the remainder of their lives. The evening was delightfully passed in listening to the many thrilling and a few amusing adventures each had gone through.

THE WAR IN CRETE.

The Nature of the Struggle---Turkish Mode of Warfare.

A letter in the Boston Advertiser, dated at Athens, in Greece, May 23d, contains the following:

The proclamations of the Turkish government, the bulletins of their commanders, the dispatches of their embassadors, are couched in the language of civilized and humane men; and the upholders of Mohammedan domination, the official and unofficial correspondents of the European governments and presses assert, that Turkish armies carry on war as the armies of civilized nations do; that is with as much leniency as the inherent barbarism of war will permit. This is all bitter mockery, or utter ignorance. The Cretan exodus stamps the lie upon all assertions that the Turks have grown civilized. Then we have in Greece more than twelve thousand living witnesses of the infernal barbarism, with which this wicked war upon a Christian people is conducted by the armies of Turkey. Being for the most part women and children, they have fled for their lives from their native land, and now stand upon the shores of neighboring islands, on the main, safe from their persecutors, under the flag of free Greece, but utterly dependent upon the charity of the world for food and clothing.

Besides these many thousand have taken refuge in the mountain fastnesses of Crete, where they strive to suppress the pangs of hunger by eating sorrel roots, snails, and whatever may be swallowed—one can hardly say eaten.

I have just been to see a company of newly arrived refugees—three hundred and fifty-one persons, mostly women and small children, with a priest, and a few old men, who fled in haste from their villages at the approach of the Turkish army.

These were not, like some of the refugees, lean and feeble, and ragged and dirty, giving proof in their haggard looks and wasted frames of long exposure and protracted suffering, but they were well clad, and plump and clean, and showed in a remarkable degree those characteristics which win for the Cretans the praise of being the handsomest of the Greeks.

I have never seen a group of people of equal culture displaying so much personal beauty as did these refugees. I shall at another time speak of the physical peculiarities of the Cretans, and show how the extraordinary advantages of soil and climate develop in their beautiful island (the Garden of the Levant) a peculiar variety of the Greek race.

Meantime this cruel exodus is going on. The whole power of the Turkish government is exerted to devastate and destroy the plains and open lands of an island whose mountain fastnesses it cannot penetrate; and to war upon women and children whose husbands and fathers it cannot subdue

Pen and Scissors.

It is reported that every doctor of respectable practice in Washington has under treatment from twenty to fifty cases of typhoid fever. The disease is unusually fatal.

The latest advices from India report that a famine is feared in the district of Upper Burmah, but that the district of Orissa, which last year was visited by a most devastating famine, is rapidly recovering from its troubles

Arkansas wants three things—a hundred thousand Irishmen to build railroads, a hundred thousand Germans to raise corn, and a hundred thousand freedmen to raise cotton. To those might be added twenty thousand Yankees to direct the work.

The number of arrests for drunkenness in London last year was 8,742. In New York, with one-third the population, the yearly arrests for intoxication number 18,000. In London one-half the arrests are of women, in New York one-fourth.

The returns of each succeeding week go to show that the immigration this year will far exceed that of last season. Nearly two thousand emigrants from British and German ports were landed at New York on Monday.

It is a curious illustration of the changes which the world is rapidly undergoing—that at late advices from Australia, the shippers were working day and night to get their wheat on board for England! While in California, the great complaint has been the lack of shipping to transport their surplus grain to the Atlantic States and to Europe!

The formal notice of the ratification of the treaty with Russia having been received by our Government, the Secretary of the Treasury will at once prepare instructions regulating trade and revenue in our recently acquired Russian possessions. As the matter now stands all our trade and revenue regulations are subject to the approval or sufferance of the Russian Government.

A desperate fight took place Monday afternoon at Calvary Cemetery, New York, between a number of persons who had just buried a friend. The fight raged nearly an hour. Women and men engaged on either side, and clubs, knives and stones were freely used. Several persons were severely injured, and one child is reported killed.

Raphael Semmes in a recent flag presentation speech spoke of "restoring the Star-Spangled Banner to the mast-head of the merchant ship, from which, in times gone by, I have so often caused it to descend." This, says the New York Times, is a pretty brag from a naval hero who for many months dodged every armed antagonist so make war on the weak, the unarmed, the unresisting, and who, when cornered at last, and forced to fight, struck his colors in his first battle.

The Marquis of Hastings lost $100,000 on the last Derby day. He is the present representative of the Marquis who was Governor General of India from 1812 to 1822, and who was distinguished as a soldier as well as administrator. The present Marquis has probably lost in one day, in betting, as much as his grandfather saved in ten years, while holding the most lucrative post in the gift of the Crown.

At several newspaper offices on the Atlantic seaboard it has been noted that an overland mail from California has been received, portions of which were covered with blood.—The other day a stage coach was attacked upon the plains by Indians, and the driver and two of the passengers murdered. The lifeless body of the driver fell among the mail bags, and much of the mail matter was saturated with blood. The newspapers bear painful evidences of the sad tragedy.

General Grant excelled himself in the speech-making line at West Point on Monday, and delivered the lengthiest speech ever spoken by him, on the occasion of presenting the first prize of the graduating class of 1867 to Cadet Ruffner. He said: "Cadet Ruffner, I present to you this testimonial with great pleasure, as having been won by superior merit, placing you at the head of your class; may it be the token of your future course, in which I trust you may be foremost in the paths of duty in which your country calls."

The Pensacola (Fla.) Observer says that the report that $340,000 had been dug up from the graveyard of that city, where it had been buried during the war, and removed to parts unknown, came near terminating in a tragedy. Some fifty or sixty negroes, who claimed their share of the plunder, attacked the negro drayman who is said to have spirited the treasure away, and would have lynched him but for the interference of the sheriff. The city, at last accounts, was filled with gangs of idle negroes "discussing the great issue."

A cow worth having is possessed by a farmer of Westfield, Massachusetts. She is said to be of the Ayrshire and Durham breeds, weighs 1600 pounds, and gives on an average over 60 pounds of milk per day.—Her greatest yield this season was 65½ pounds and the day following she gave 64 pounds.—From November 1, 1865, to November 1, 1866, beside a supply of milk, cream and butter for family use, the owner sold $150 worth of milk from this single cow.

This is the way the Pacific railroad is laid at the rate of more than a mile a day: Iron, ties, &c., for one mile, are sent in a train as near the end of the track as it can get, and unloaded at the side of the rails; the ties are scattered along by teams, while gangs of men place and level them; then small, low cars are loaded with rails, spikes, and chairs, and pushed to the end of the last rail, when two rails are seized and run off at the end and dropped in their places; as they fall others gauge them to keep them at the proper width, while another drops spikes at the cross-ties; the little car goes on and the spike drivers follow up nailing them down. Then come the track straighteners and the ballast men, making in all a procession of a mile long, all trained to know their special duty, and to do it with a will and a promptness that knows no failure or delay.

Burning of the American Theatre.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—The American Varieties Theatre, Walnut street above Eighth, under the management of Mr. Fox, was destroyed by fire, with much surrounding property. The fire commenced in a stable at the rear of the Theatre. The alarm was soon communicated to the audience, which fortunately was small, and succeeded in escaping, though many were bruised in the rush to the front door. In a short time the whole interior was in a blaze. It is believed all the performers escaped.

About 10:30 the front wall of the building fell with an awful crash, by which thirteen men were killed and thirty wounded.

☞Secretary Seward has received two highly important communications from Queen Victoria and the Emperor Napoleon, in which they hope that this Government will do all that it deems proper in the way of an intercession with the Liberal authorities in Mexico to save the life of Maximilian. The fact of this request has been communicated to Juarez, together with a repetition of the hope forwarded some time since to Juarez by Secretary Seward that Maximilian will not be treated otherwise than as a prisoner of war. It is not true, as stated, that the Secretary of State has made a formal demand that Maximilian's life be spared.

☞A despatch from Cincinnati this morning says: Hon. George H. Pendleton, Copperhead, entertained Hon. Schuyler Colfax, radical, at his Clifton residence, the Bowler mansion, on Saturday evening. Among the guests present were Hon. R. B. Hayes, radical candidate for Governor of Ohio, and Col. Jones, Copperhead, of Newport, Kentucky. What a mix!

Wanted, a good Tanner, by C. H. Miller & Son.
Auditor's Notice—Estate of Matthias Saylor.
Goods by canal and railroad at Henry & Co's.
Notice to debtors. Speer & McMurtrie.

Brief Items.

—The Juniata county Poor House farm was sold for $10,050.

—Blair county is to have a new jail. By the way, a much needed improvement in these quarters.

—We received a basket of very fine strawberries from Mr. Theodore H. Cremer. He has our thanks.

—Comfortable: to be free from party harness; you can think and act as you please. Liberty is sweet.

—Another itinerant organ-grinder was around on Monday grinding out a variety of airs. He met with poor encouragement.

—A grey eagle was shot near the village of Fostoria, Blair county, recently, which measured seven feet from tip to tip of wings.

—Warming up: the politicians of the county. But they don't understand why it is that the mass of voters have "nothing to say."

—At its zenith: the fight between the Monitor and Journal & American of this place. The little dogs laugh to see the sport, but all forget the Moral.

—A full attendance of the members of Standing Stone Division, S. of T., is requested on Friday evening next, as important business is to be transacted.

—The Odd Fellows and Red Men have both fitted up neat apartments in the upper rooms of Loister's new building, and are holding meetings in the same.

—A woman got off the Accommodation train at Mill Creek on Friday evening, and carried a baby to the Mill Creek Hotel, where she left it to be cared for by the good people of that place.

—The whole amount of stock required to build the Johnstown Water Works, $100,000, has been subscribed. We are very much afraid we will have to wait until the Juniata runs dry before our people do likewise.

—The strawberry culturists in this section are reaping no small profits for their care in supplying the people with this luscious fruit. The abundance of the berry this season has partially supplied the lack of cherries.

—Our newly married friend Kenzie A. Lovell has returned from a month's wedding tour to the Falls of Niagara, etc. He looks well, and we hope he and lady may long live and enjoy the blessings of marriage and good health.

—There are only six cornet bands to be in attendance at the Altoona dedication. Music has charms to soothe, &c, and draw a big crowd, etc. It is to be hoped that the Huntingdon Cornet will not be thrown in the shade.

—Only twenty-four rats were caught inside of three days (or rather inside a steel trap) in the cellar of the First National Store across the way. Many of our people are complaining of the frequent depredations of these ugly "varmints."

—We learn that our young friend Al. C. Snyder, who we believe is now a telegraph operator at New Orleans, was married to a Miss Lizzie Nelson, of Memphis, Tenn. We hope he and his Southern bride may have a happy and prosperous time of it.

—The pupils of the Huntingdon Academy, numbering about forty, under the tutorship of Professor Wyeth, were examined on Friday last. We understand the examination was highly creditable to both scholars and teacher. The school has closed until the 26th of August.

—The first boquet of the season was received by the Sr. from Miss Lizzie Norris, of Penn township. She will please accept our thanks. The Jrs. of the fraternity also acknowledge the receipt of a couple of beautiful boquets from a trio of Misses of this place. The fair donors will please accept thanks.

—The firm of Summers and McGill, bakers, having dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. McGill has opened out a bakery on the corner of Mifflin and Smith streets, opposite the jail, and is prepared to furnish pies, cakes, bread, &c., to purchasers, in large or small quantities. Give him a trial.

—A horse which was stolen from Mr. George W. Zinn, who keeps a livery stable at Newport, was identified at the Mount Union Hotel on Thursday, where it had been taken by a young man, who said he was from Mifflinburg. He left the town before he could be arrested.

—Stakes indicating the width of pavements have been put down on all the principal unpaved thoroughfares in our borough. This shows that our Councilmen have a mind to carry out in practice all that they profess. This is all right; but why don't the Secretary take a little time to furnish the papers with a copy of the proceedings? He would come in for a share of our thanks as well as the rest.

—In noting "improvements" in the borough, we forgot to mention that "Little Johnny Swoope" has opened out a refreshment saloon in the shed to the rear of Mr. P. C. Swoope's dwelling on Bath street. Judging from the crowd of boys that crowd his door at certain times, he must be doing a rushing business in the pin trade. He has a clear track for picking up all of Young America's loose change.

Another Festival.

The Huntingdon Silver Cornet Band intend holding a Strawberry and Ice Cream Festival at the Castilian Garden on Friday evening next. Our citizens know that the Band has been to some expense in purchasing their silver instruments, for teaching, music, &c., and are in debt. The object of the coming Festival on Friday evening is to raise sufficient money to liquidate their debts, and we have no doubt our music-loving citizens will extend their liberality to this worthy organization. Let those give who never gave before and those who did give only give the more, and the thanks of "ye excelsior band" will be bestowed upon each and all in their usual generous way. We deem it needless to urge our town people to contribute to this cause, as the numerous free benefits which they receive should cause them not to forget the Band, but our country people are also invited to attend the Festival and patronize the Huntingdon Silver Cornet—the pride of Huntingdon county. The price of admission into the Garden is 15 cents.

A Sensible Memorial.

We learn from the Erie Dispatch that many places are talking of erecting monuments to the memory of those of their citizens who fell during the late war. One of the most sensible plans is that adopted by the town of Lancaster, Mass. It proposes a building which shall be called Memorial Hall, and which shall also serve as a town hall; library, &c. On the centre of the rear wall, opposite the entrance, in the principal apartment, marble tablets will contain the names of all citizens of the town who have fallen in war, with suitable commemorative inscriptions. Rooms are also to be furnished as reading and committee rooms and thus while the building will serve as an admirable monument to perpetuate the memory of the patriotic martyrs, it will, at the same time, be of great advantage to the living.

Huntingdon Cemetery.

If there is any spot on earth that should be made to look beautiful, it is the City of the Dead, where the remains of those we love are interred.—While individuals do what they can in ornamenting and beautifying the graves of departed friends, it is equally well that those in charge of the the grounds should do what they can to improve and adorn the public parts of it. We learn that there is about $1800 in the Cemetery Fund, which has been realized from the sale of the lots in the new addition to the grounds. Could not a portion of the same be applied at once to making walks in the same, and beautifying it generally.—At least, could not a better gate be made—one that would admit of ladies passing in and out without so much unnecessary climbing? Will those in authority please attend to this at once.

Stopping Newspapers.

A certain man hit his toe against a pebble and fell headlong to the ground. He was vexed, and, under the influence of anger and self-sufficiency, he cursed mother earth right sancily. With imperturbable gravity he looked to see the earth itself dissolve and come to naught. But the earth remained; and only his poor toe was injured in the encounter. This is the way of man. An article in the newspaper touches him in a weak spot and straightway he sends to stop his paper. With great self-complacency he looks to see the crash, when the object of his spleen shall cease to be. Poor fool! he has only hit his own toe against a world that does not perceptibly feel the shock, and injures to that extent none but himself.

The Festival.

The Festival given by the Methodist Mite Society at the Castilian Garden, on Wednesday night last, was a splendid affair, and we learn that about $200 were realized. The object was worthy of success, and we are glad that it has received it. The proceeds are to be applied to defraying the expenses of enlarging and furnishing the parsonage, which is now being completed. The intention is to get blinds for the church windows as soon as practicable. The managers and Society return thanks to Col. Summers for the free use of the Garden on that evening.

The State Agricultural Exhibition.

Messrs. Hamilton, of Dauphin; Kapp, of Northumberland, and Way, of Allegheny, a committee of the State Agricultural Society for that purpose have fixed the location for holding its next exhibition at Pittsburgh, commencing on Tuesday, Sept. 24. The grounds in that city are spacious, very complete and convenient of access.—The competition was lively between the east and west, but Pittsburg having complied with the terms submitted by the committee it was decided that the claims of the west were paramount.

—The Johnstown Tribune says:—We learn that our townsman, Mr. W. H. Rosensteel, has rented the large tannery at Mapleton, Huntingdon co., owned by Mr. A. H. Bauman. Mr. Rosensteel has been for many years the foreman of Mr. James P. M'Conaughy's steam tannery in this place, and has conducted the mechanical operations of that establishment with great success.

☞ A beautiful Bible is to be voted for at the Festival on Friday evening next, to be presented to the minister in the town or county receiving the highest number of votes.

Frightful Accident.

A fearful accident occurred on the railroad crossing near Henry & Co's store, yesterday (Monday) afternoon, in which Mr. Simon Coulter was considerably injured about the face, and the hind end of a wagon badly broken up. The following are the particulars: Mr. Coulter was on the northern side of the track, waiting for a westward bound freight train to pass; this it did, when Mr. C. started ahead with his wagon, but he had just got on the eastward track when he saw the Cincinnati Express coming down with usual rapid speed, not more than fifty feet from him. Seeing his imminent danger, he lashed the mule, which bounded forward with such a jump that it got clear of the harness and dragged Mr. Coulter, by the lines, clear over the front of the wagon, and he fell on his face, knocking him insensible. The hind end of the wagon, in the meantime, was caught by the cow-catcher of the locomotive and twirled against the side of Henry & Co's store, mashing the side and breaking the wagon, which belongs to the same firm. So close was danger that if Mr. Coulter had not whipped the mule at the time he did, both he and the animal would have been killed, but as it is, the mule was not hurt and Mr. Coulter is recovering from his injuries.

☞ Major Johnston, of the firm of Johnston & Wattson has just returned from the eastern cities, where he has purchased a large and handsome stock of all kinds of Summer Goods. The Major says that all kinds of goods are much cheaper, and requests all of the readers of the Globe, to call and examine their large stock of goods before purchasing elsewhere. †

SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO THE LADIES.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire? One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to dress tastefully regardless of rebelacts, do not forget to call at the store of the subscriber, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress as you may desire. Urge your fathers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as reasonable terms as at any House in town. BEALE'S

Late Powell's Embrocation,

For all Diseases Incident to HORSES, CATTLE, and the HUMAN FLESH, Requiring the use of an External Application.

This new Compound, prepared by a practical Chemist having a full knowledge of all the medical virtues of each ingredient that enters into its composition, is warranted to exceed anything of the kind ever yet offered to the Public as an external application for the diseases for which is is recommended. We are satisfied that it will work its own road into the confidence of all who use it, and those who try it once will never be without it, and therefore we rely on experience as the best test of its usefulness. It is pronounced by Farriers, and all who have tried it to be the best application ever used. This Embrocation has been put up for over eight years, and it is only through the increasing demand and urgent request of my friends and the Public that I send it forth as the grand remedial agent for the various diseases to which that noble and useful animal, the horse, is subject

Many remedies have been offered to the Public under different forms, some of these are injurious, others at best of little use, and many wholly improper to answer the purposes for which they are recommended.

A judicious and really useful composition, free from those objections, has therefore long been desired by many gentlemen who have valuable horses, and are unwilling to trust them to the care of designing and pretended Farriers. Their wishes are at length fully gratified, by Dr. Beale being prevailed upon to allow this valuable Embrocation (which has proved so efficacious to the various diseases) to be prepared and brought out to the public.

For sale at Lewis' Book Store, and by Store keepers generally. may 1, '67-6m.

LATEST FASHIONS DEMAND

J. W. Bradley's Celebrated Patent

Duplex Elliptic

or Double Spring,

SKIRT.

The wonderful Flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt will be experienced particularly in all crowded assemblies, operas, carriages, railroad cars, church pews, arm chairs, for promenade and house dress, as the skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as easily and conveniently as a silk or muslin dress, an invaluable quality in crinoline, not found in any single spring skirt.

A lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort, and great convenience of wearing the duplex elliptic steel spring skirt for a single day, will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use. For children, misses and young ladies they are superior to all others.

They will not bend or break like the single spring but will preserve their perfect and graceful shape when three or four ordinary skirts will have been thrown aside as useless. The hoops are covered with double and twisted thread, and the bottom rods are not only double springs, but twice (or double) covered; preventing them from wearing out when dragging down steps, stairs, &c.

The Duplex Elliptic is a great favorite with all ladies and is universally recommended by the Fashion Magazines as the standard skirt of the fashionable world.

To enjoy the following incalculable advantages in crinoline, viz: superior quality, perfect manufacture, stylish shape and finish, flexibility, durability, comfort and economy, enquire for J. W. Bradley's Duplex Elliptic, or double spring skirt, and be sure you get the genuine article.

CAUTION.—To guard against imposition be particular to notice that skirts offered as "Duplex" have the red ink stamp, viz: "J. W. Bradley's Duplex Elliptic Steel Springs" upon the waist band—none others are genuine. Also notice that every hoop will admit a pin being passed through the centre, thus revealing the two (or double) springs braided together therein, which is the secret of their flexibility and strength, and a combination not to be found in any other spring.

For sale in all stores where first class skirts are sold throughout the United States and elsewhere.

PROP. H. M'ENTYRE'S GREAT REMEDY,

THE

INDIAN COMPOUND

Internal and External Medicine,

WILL CURE:

☞ Diarrhœa, Bloody Flux in one day,
☞ Headache and Earache in three minutes.
☞ Toothache in one minute,
☞ Neuralgia in five minutes,
☞ Sprains in twenty minutes,
☞ Sore Throat in ten minutes,
☞ Cholic and Cramp in five minutes,
☞ Rheumatism in one day,
☞ Pain in the Back or Side in ten minutes,
☞ Bad Coughs or Colds in one day,
☞ Fever and Ague in one day.
☞ Cures Deafness, Asthma, Piles,
☞ Bronchitis Affections, Dyspepsia,
☞ Inflammation of the Kidneys, Erysipelas,
☞ Liver Complaint and Palpitation of the Heart.

Keep it in your Families—Sickness comes when least expected.

I propose to check, and effectually dissipate more acute and pain, and to accomplish more perfect equilibrium of all the circulating fluids in the human system, than can be effected by any other, or all other methods of medical aid in the same space of time.

THIS POPULAR REMEDY is fast coming into use, for the fact that I cure, free of charge, all those complaints whenever there is an opportunity to do so. As soon as it is applied it almost miraculously kills the pain. I do not ask you to believe you owe certain of its efficacy. If you have an achour pain, it is warranted to do all it purports on the label.

I do not propose to cure every disease—only a class named by my directions. Liniment operates on chemical and electric principles, and is, therefore applicable, to the cure or natural restorative of all organic derangement arising from an improper circulation of the nerve vital fluids.

Prof. J. H. McEntyre's INDIAN COMPOUND acts directly on the absorbents, reducing glandular and other swellings in incredible short time, without any possible danger from its use under any possible circumstances.

This is an internal and external medicine—composed of roots, herbs and barks, such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on earth to cure all complaints if we only know what they were.

This has been a great study with the Medical Faculty for many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what proportions to use.

PHOTOGRAPH

PATENT APPLIED FOR.

Hitherto there has been nothing introduced in way of a Marriage Certificate that has excited any interest or attraction; but the originators of the PHOTOGRAPH MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE claim that they have gotten up something that will be most heartily welcomed by all persons now married and all those who contemplate marriage.

Size and Plan of the Marriage Certificate.

The size of the Certificate is 19 by 14 inches. It contains a beautiful figure representing the union of two hearts. Above the figure is written in beautifully ornamented German Text the words "Photograph Marriage Certificate." There are three spaces in the figure: on the space in the center the Certificate proper is written. The words, "two hearts in one" form an arch over the Certificate proper, and immediately under the arch there is a beautiful figure representing the joining of hands, and where the centre space comes to a point there is a picture of two beautiful turtle doves. On the space to the left there is a place for the photograph of the gentleman and under it we have the words, "To the Husband," in ornamental text, under which we have selections of Scripture passages addressed to the husband. On the left side of the engraving we have a place for the Photograph of the wife. Immediately under which we have the words, "To the Wife," in ornamental text, under which are appropriate passages of Scripture addressed to the wife. Over the space for the photograph of gentleman we have written in Old English characters, the following appropriate passage of Scripture: "It is not good that the man should be alone," and over the space for the photograph of the lady, we have the corresponding words: "I will make him an help meet for him." At the lower extension of the figure of the hearts, we have the hearts bound together or encircled in part by these words: "What therefore God hath joined together let no man put asunder." The Certificate is so constructed that card photographs of both bride and bridegroom can be inserted without the least possible difficulty. Indeed everything connected with it is so elegant, attractive and desirable that many single persons seeing the Certificate have been so much pleased with its appearance, that they purchased on sight one of these beautiful parlor ornaments.

A specimen copy of the Photograph Marriage Certificate will be carefully put up and sent by mail free, on receipt of the retail price, which is ONE DOLLAR.
